through metaphors and allusions to art science and religion andr bazin s writings on the cinema explore a simple yet profound question what is a human for the famous french film critic a human is simultaneously a rational animal and an irrational being bazin s idea of the cinema is a mind machine where the ethical implications have priority over aesthetic issues and in its ability to function as an art form for the masses cinema is the only medium that can address an audience at the individual and community levels simultaneously the audience sees the same film but each individual relates to the narrative in a different way in principle cinema can unsettle our routines in productive ways and expand our sense of belonging to a much larger picture by arguing that this dissident catholic s worldview is anti anthropocentric angela dalle vacche concludes that

andré bazin's idea of the cinema recapitulates the histories of biological evolution and modern technology inside our consciousness through the projection of recorded traces of the world onto a brain like screen the cinema can open viewers up to self interrogation and empathy towards otherness bazin was neither a spiritualist nor an animist or a pantheist yet his film theory leads also to ideas of a more cosmological persuasion through editing and camera movement cinema explores our belonging to a vast universe that extends from the microbes of the microscope to the stars of the telescope such ideas of connectedness coupled with bazin's well known emphasis of realism form the foundation for his film theory's embrace of italian neorealism choosing to avoid a quantitative naturalism based on accumulation of details bazin's theory instead promotes the kind of cinema that celebrates perceptual displacement the objectification of human behavior and one's own critical self awareness accounts of jack cade's 1450 rebellion an uprising of some 30 000 middle class citizens protesting henry vi's policies and resulting in hundreds of deaths as well as the leaders execution form the dominant entry in a group of quasi historical documents referred to as the london chronicles of the fifteenth century however each chronicle is inherently different and highly subjective in the first study of the primary documents related to the cade rebellion alexander l kaufman shows that the chroniclers produced multiple representations of the event rather than a single unified narrative aided by contemporary theories of historiography and historical representation kaufman scrutinizes the differing representations and distinguishes the writers objectiveness their underrated literary skills and their ideological positions on the rebellion and fifteenth century politics he demonstrates how the use of figurative language is related to writing about trauma and how descriptions of cade's procession through london are a violent parody of midsummer festivals in an exploration of authenticity in the descriptions of cade kaufman also examines the characterization and plot devices that push cade towards the realm of myth showing that representations of cade are influenced by popular fifteenth century stories of robin hood to survey harsh criticisms against brian douglas mclaren 1956 readers gain the inaccurate impression that he is a heretical relativist who denies objective truth and logic while mclaren's inflammatory and provocative writing style is partly to blame this study also suspects that his critics base much of their analyses on only small portions of his overall corpus the result becomes a caricature of mclaren's actual philosophy of religion what is argued in this book is that mclaren's philosophy of religion suggests a faith based intersubjective relationship with the divine ought to result in an existential appropriation of christ's religio ethical teachings when subjectively internalized this appropriation will lead to the assimilation of jesus kingdom priorities thereby transforming the believer's identity into one that actualizes jesus kingdom ideals the hope of this book is that by tracing mclaren's philosophy of christian religion future researchers will not only be able to comprehend and perhaps empathize with mclaren's line of reasoning but they will also possess a more nuanced discernment of where they agree and disagree with his overall rationale this book summarizes and synthesizes the available research on social class and classism around counseling practice and research the authors offer interesting and provocative applications of social class and classism to varied practice and research settings and provide suggestions toward education training and practice
